Only those items that are amended or supplemented are reported herein. All capitalized terms used in this Amendment No. 3 and not otherwise defined herein have the meaning ascribed to such terms in the Original Schedule 13D. Except as amended and supplemented herein or by Amendments No. 1 and 2 thereto, the Original Schedule 13D, including the definitions of terms not otherwise defined herein, remains in full force and effect.

Item 4. Purpose of Transaction.

The following supplements Item 4 disclosure set forth in the original Schedule 13D and subsequent Amendments thereto:

On July 18, 2013, Messrs. Stetson and Kropp on behalf of the Reporting Persons sent a letter by email and regular mail to the Company and its Trust Managers where the Group communicates that it intends to vote its shares in opposition to the Company's recently announced transaction with CIM Urban REIT and its affiliates, unless modified. This letter is attached as Exhibit 2.

Other than the foregoing, there have been no other changes to the plans or proposals of the Reporting Persons. Although the foregoing represents the current plans and intentions of the Reporting Persons, it should be noted that such plans and intentions may change at any time. Accordingly, the Reporting Persons are continuously reviewing all aspects of their Share position. Consequently, the Reporting Persons expressly reserve the right to acquire additional shares or to sell or otherwise dispose of all or part of their Share position and may do so at any time. Whether the Reporting Persons decide to acquire additional Shares or sell some or all of the Shares that they now own will depend upon circumstances existing from time to time, many of which the Reporting Persons cannot control, including market conditions and any response that the Company may make to any efforts or actions of the Reporting Persons (including any efforts or actions to acquire control of the Company).

Board of Trust Managers
PMC Commercial Trust

Ladies and Gentlemen:

As you know from our most recent 13D filing of May 17, 2013, REIT Redux's filing group controls 5.5% of PMC's outstanding shares.

We are writing today to express our extreme disappointment in the Board's decision to enter into the transaction announced on July 8, 2013 with CIM Urban REIT and its affiliates. Based on the information that has been made available, we have the following concerns with the deal and, unless modified, intend to vote our shares in opposition:

- Substantial Discount to Value. On various measures either the implied price of $10.50 per share or the current post announcement market price of $9.55 represent a substantial discount to the intrinsic value of our company. We note that PMC's stated book value is over $13 and believe that the SBA and SBIC platforms have significant additional value today.
 - Greater Illiquidity. After subtracting the proposed $5.50 special dividend, the remaining stub stock can initially be expected to be priced at $5 per share or less. With limited institutional appeal at that price and almost 98% of the pro forma outstanding stock (CIM's new shares) initially not trading, current PMC shareholders will be left with shares that we expect will be even less liquid than the existing shares.
 - Price Overhang. The millions of shares issued to CIM in the deal (including shares issuable upon conversion of the preferred stock) will represent a massive share overhang which—we expect—will further depress value for current holders for the foreseeable future. We note that the terms of the deal provide that all of the shares issued to CIM, including shares we expect to be distributed by CIM, will be subject to registration rights.
 - External Management Structure. From a longer term perspective, the external management structure contemplated for the new company results in a clear misalignment of incentives between shareholders and the external manager, which is why such structures in equity REITs have failed to attract investor interest for years. The most recent failure of the Colony American Homes offering is simply one example.
 - Different Business. PMC shareholders are dedicated investors in a specialized mortgage REIT. The combination of CIM's growth-oriented redevelopment business and PMC's income-oriented mortgage business appears unsustainable to us in anything but the short run. We also do not believe that keeping PMC's mortgage business (at just 3% of assets) qualifies the new company as a mortgage or hybrid REIT in any way.
 - Insufficient Yield. The 3.5% targeted yield for a pro forma company is woefully inadequate. We note the median yield of all REITs is 3.8%. This includes the top 30 REITs—with long histories of stability and growth, strong share liquidity and clearly aligned incentive structures.

Our concerns about value received in this deal—including yield, liquidity and long term prospects—are also amplified by significant concerns with the structure and process of this deal. The unconventional merger structure—an affiliate of CIM, the acquirer, merging into a subsidiary of PMC, the target—ostensibly provides PMC with a means to avoid a shareholder vote on a sale of the company under state law or PMC’s charter, votes which we believe would be significantly more challenging to obtain than the lower approval threshold required by the NYSE in respect of solely the issuance of new shares to CIM and its affiliates. We note, for example, the difficulties that PMC had with obtaining a merger vote from its shareholders in 2004, as well as PMC’s proxy disclosures for years about the uncertain treatment in shareholder votes of PMC’s high percentage of non-voting retail shareholders under Texas law and the company’s constituent documents. The end around on a truly meaningful shareholder vote for the totality of this deal is compounded by its two step nature. We read in the merger agreement that the deal also involves a second step charter amendment (to increase authorized shares to enable conversion and likely re-domicile the company to Maryland)—a vote that will be easily obtained under all circumstances once CIM is fully in control—and we question whether this two-step transaction should be seen as an integrated plan subject to a shareholder vote under state law and/or PMC’s charter at this time.

In addition to our concerns about circumventing the shareholder franchise for such a fundamental sale-of-the-company transaction, we do not believe that the “go-shop” mechanism put in place is any substitute for a full auction to maximize value for shareholders, and we are sincerely disappointed that the Board is relying on this mechanism to attempt to satisfy its fiduciary responsibilities to shareholders. (We await the proxy to learn more about the Board’s process overall). While we have never believed that a limited “go-shop” is a constructive exercise, in light of all of the problems with this deal, we implore the company and its bankers to conduct a thorough and careful outreach to potential buyers both within and outside PMC’s immediate industry, as we believe our company would have significant value in the hands of a number of larger players.

We sincerely appreciate the need for scale and the various challenges faced by PMC at its current size; per our prior communications and letters to you, we ourselves have been highly critical of PMC’s “overhead problem” (as a percentage of assets and revenue) and its lack of production. To address this, we have proposed acquisitions and/or entering into new, but related, lines of business to add scale, including real estate equity businesses that are appropriately sized and synergistic for the company, and note that other shareholders have also encouraged you do so as well. We have been consistently rebuffed to our great frustration. Nevertheless, we strongly believe that the best option for the company is not to sell out to an entirely different business, at a discounted price, with both significant liquidity risks and questionable long term prospects for current shareholders and in manner that attempts to minimize the current shareholders’ collective voice as to the wisdom of that decision. Given improved origination opportunities and a rising interest rate environment that should be expected to benefit the company’s floating rate portfolio in the near future, we also struggle to understand why now is the right time to “throw in the towel” and sell PMC in its entirety, particularly in this kind of highly unconventional deal. As vocal shareholders but firm believers in the PMC’s basic business model, we have always believed that our company has the organizational platform, assets and opportunities to go it alone and create significant value for shareholders.

The buyer’s motivation for the deal, on the other hand, is quite logical and could not be clearer to us. Mr. Ressler of CIM stated in the announcement press release:

"This transaction offers an efficient program to provide our institutional partners with liquidity over time while maintaining their ability to hold their investment and continue to benefit from expected quarterly dividends and capital appreciation from the portfolio of exceptionally attractive properties assembled by CIM Urban REIT over the last eight years," said Richard S. Ressler, Co-Founder and Principal of CIM Group. "The merged company will be a well-capitalized owner of top-tier real estate assets located in some of the best performing real estate markets in North America. Additionally, we believe that the merged company will be an attractive investment for a broad array of investors, including some that have been precluded from investing in CIM Urban REIT because of restrictions against private investments or because of the large minimum investment required to participate in CIM Group's private institutionally-focused funds."

These comments—focused nearly entirely on CIM’s existing business—should be a wake up call to the PMC Board that the valuable business of our small company is simply an afterthought in this deal, and, at the end of the day, this transaction has everything to do with finding a way for CIM to provide public market liquidity for CIM partners and “permanent capital” for CIM’s management team and to leverage CIM’s existing assets in a (quasi) public vehicle. That they are essentially stealing PMC in our view must be a “cherry on top” but it’s clearly a very miniscule one at that. PMC’s willingness to serve as this kind of conduit at a discount is mis-guided.

If any of the parties would like to discuss our views further, we would genuinely welcome the opportunity.

Very truly yours,

REIT Redux LP
